The Wreck of the "Garricks."

A True Incident.

The day was just ending, far down by the sea, In a small fishing village, as quaint as could be,

The fisher-folk sat at their own cottage door And watched a large vessel approaching the shore.

On board the good ship were souls who had come

From the Land of the Shamrock, the land of their home:

They'd left their loved kindred and all they held dear,

And crossed the wide ocean to settle out here.

And now the long voyage would shortly be o'er. Its storms and its perils would fright them no more: Yes, soon they'd be treading on Canada's soil,

And earning their bread by good, honest toil.

The day had been fair, but as evening drew nigh

Some dark, angry clouds overshadowed the sky.

The look of the weather, the fisherfolk said, Betokened a tempest, fast brewing o'erhead.

Not long was this spoken when, sudden, . amain A fierce wind came sweeping o'er mountain and plain; The sea, that a moment before was at rest,

Now boiled in white billows from east to the

But what of the vessel out there in the night, So near to the rocks, and no beacon in sight? "She's weathered the storms of the ocean, and now

She ought to avert from this wild shore her prow.

Thus spoke the good people who lived near the sea, But some had their fears what the ending would be; For many a vessel had perished before In just such a storm on that treacherous shore.

Lo, there is the vessel just seen in the gloom, But, seel she is drifting ashore to her doom! Her mainmast is broken, all tattered her sails! She is falling a prey to the rocks and the

Still nearer and nearer she comes to the shore, Urged on by the billows that threaten and roar:

But, oh! she has struck where the sunken rocks lie.

"She's breaking! She's sinking!" goes out the wild cry.

Oh, could we go out from the storm-beaten beach

To rescue the heipless not far from our reach; Ah, never a boat could be launched in that sea.

Alas! for the souls who in terror must be.

What is that cry that we hear over there

Above the fierce temptest, that cry of despair? It comes from the victims cast out of the ship, All shricking, and wailing, in death's icy grip.

But soon all was over, no cry was heard more, And portions of wreckage were washed on the shore,

And the souls who had come o'er the ocean's wild wave

Had found there in Gaspe a watery grave.

When morning did dawn the fierce tempest was o'er. And four-score and seven lay dead on the shore:

All bloated and rigid, with wreckage they lay, Oh, what a sad picture at dawning of day.

One hundred poor victims did perish beside, Whose bodies were caught by the out-flowing tide:

So a hundred and eighty and seven, or more, Were lost in that wreck on the far Gaspe shore.

To-day there are wrecks on the treacherous shoals, Not only of vessels, but wrecks of poor souls. In city and village, on land and on sec, These wrecks of God's creatures we constantly see.

They're wrecks of poor fathers, once noble and strong;

Of once happy mothers, who yielded to wrong; Of sons and fair daughters, once hopeful with-

All wrecked on the breakers of folly and sin.

But who will go bravely in God's holy might And save those poor sinners, soon sinking from sight?

Oh, hasten, my comrade, not counting the cost;

Go. rescue them quickly, or they will be lost.

-P. N. Esnouf.

WHY HE FAILS.

When we hear a young man whining that he has no chance, complaining that fate has doomed him to mediocrity, that he can never get a start for himself, but must always work for somebody else; when we see him finding unconquerable obstacles everywhere, when he tells us that he could do this or that if he could only get a start, if somebody would help him, we know there is very poor success material in him—that he is not made of the stuff that rises. He acknowledges that he is not equal to the emergencies which confront him. He confesses his weakness, his inability to cope with obstacles which others sur-mount. When a man tells you that luck is against him, that he cannot see any way of doing what he would like to do, he admits that he is not master of the situation, that he must give way to opposition because he is not big enough or strong enough to surmount it. He probably has not lime enough in his backbone to hold a straw erect.

There is a weakness in the man who always sees a lion in the way of what he wants to do, whose determination is not strong enough to overcome the obstacle. He has not the inclination to buckle down to solid, hard work. He wants success, but he does not want it badly enough to pay the price. The desire to drift along, to take things easy, to have a cond time another than the succession of the succes good time, overbalances ambition.

THE BOYS LIKE "FATHER."

Staff-Capt. Hay has been able to do effective work with prisoners of the Vancouver Iail, incarcerated and released. States the Staff-Captain in a recent letter: "I have quite a few prisoners come direct to me, and have been able to assist them. Only a week ago a young man came out of the jail and I got hold of him at the barracks and was able to lead him to Christ, also assisted him to get some tools, and he is now working. They have given me the name of 'Father' at the jail, and though I say it myself, the boys are delighted to have me go, and at the present time several are under conviction and I am believing soon to see them saved."

WHAT THE JAPANESE MINISTER SAID.

The Japanese Minister in Paris is stated to have said that "we Japanese have for many generations sent to Europe exquisite lacquer work, delicately-carved figures, beautiful embroidery, and many other commodities which showed how artistic we are; but the European described us as 'uncivilized.' We have killed some seventy thousand Russians, and every European nation is wondering at the high condition of civilization which we have at-A fine comment upon twentieth centained." tury Christianity-or want of it.

CUTTING SUGAR CANES.

"Cursed be he that doeth the work of the Lord deceitfully (negligently), and cursed be he that keepeth back his sword from blood."—Jer. xlviii. 10.

When I was a book-keeper on a sugar estate we paid the field laborers every Friday night, according to the piece-work which each had done. On one occasion a man presented himself for payment who had worked on the adjoining estate. He came to the wrong paytable! It happened that he had worked just over the line-fence, hence the mistake.

For the most part, however, the negroes worked deceitfully and negligently, and so gave a deal of trouble to us book-keepers. When cleaning (hoeing) the cane-pieces of weeds, they would hoe half and cover up the rest; or cutting canes in crop-time would place less than ten canes in a bundle, or less than fourteen bundles in a heap. It was impossible for us to check all, but we would check some, and for the slightest mistake (?) the whole day's work would go for nothing. Unless we had acted on these lines the estate would soon have been thrown out of cultivation.

How much more important in God's work. Our negligence, or deceitful work, wili mean that men and women, who might have spent eternity in heaven, will spend it in hell—and some of them will be our own relations! And if we shrink from the fight against the adversary of our souls, by keeping back out swords from blood, then we become the friend of the devil, and the enemy of God. How can it be otherwise?

SANCTIFIED AND MADE MEET.

"That He would grant you, according to the riches of His glory, to be strengthened with might by His Spirit in the inner man; that Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; and to know the love of Christ, which passets heavyledge that we might which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the goodness of God. Now unto Him who is able to do exceedingly abundant above all we can ask or think, according to the power that work-eth in us."—Eph. iii. 16-20.

A converted coolieman, reading the above verses, came to the conclusion that there is a higher-up religion in the Bible than what he saw in the lives of the Christians around him. He thought it out, and prayed it out more and more, with the result that he became deeply convicted for the blessing of holiness. At length he could hold it out no longer, and so, leaving his wife to mind the shop-he was a shop-keeper-he went with his Bible to the mountain, determined to fast and pray and wait on God until he should receive this baptism of the Holy Ghost and of fire. He had to tarry long, for God showed him that there was much to hinder. were doubtful things to give up, such as to-bacco, etc. At length, however, he became thoroughly humbled in spirit, and then it was that the answer came, and he was filled with the fulness of God. His body had become the temple of the Holy Chost. His first thought was to run and tell his minister; and through him he got sanctified and with the lead him he got sanctified, and was able to lead others into this higher blessing.

Solitude and society may be illustrated by a lake and a river. In the one, indeed, we can view the heavens more clearly and calmly, but we can also see our own image more distinctly, and are in danger of the sin of Narcissus; while in the river, the view both of the heavens and of ourselves is more broken and disturbed, but health and fertility are scat-tered around,-Wolfe,

Life Sketch of Adjutant McHarg.

OST of the days of my youth were spent in the City of Quebec, where I was born. I never liked school, consequently the desk I should have occupied consequently the desk I should have occupied was as often vacant as occupied, but like all those who do wrong, "my sin often found me out." I well remember on one occasion being marched a guilty culprit to the school being marched a guilty culprit to the school master, by my mother, who informed him of my misdeeds, and was left in his hands for correction. The school master, thinking no correction. The school master, thinking no the doubt I had received an application of the birch rod at home, did not apply his strap. On my return home, on being asked by my mother as to whether I had received my punishment at school, I replied in the affirmative and of course I escaped my punishment at home as well as at school.

At the age of fourteen I decided that I had seen enough of school, and found a place as apprentice to a watchmaker and jeweler in the city, but before I had reached my first year as an apprentice my employer was called to his eternal reward. A few weeks later the way was opened for me to receive another position at the same trade with another jewelsome three years later left Quebec to become an Army officer.

While serving my apprenticeship I became a soldier in the 8th Royal Rifles. During the three years I spent as a volunteer the Northwest rebellion broke out, and I became very anxious that our regiment should be sent to the front. The nearest we got to the front. however, was doing garrison duty at the Citadel while the battery that was then in garrison at the Citadel went to the front,

It was while visiting a week in the city of Montreal I first heard of the Salvation Army. The work had not long started in that city. The young men of the house where I stayed frequented the barracks, and from the story I heard them tell, and from what I had read in the newspapers (I found out after they were false) I came to the conclusion that I would stay away from Army meetings. This l did.

I did.

In the fall of '86 Mrs. Staff-Capt. Simco, accompanied by a Captain and two Cadets, arrived in the city of Quebec and started what was known as the French work; they were known as the Armee-du-Salut. Somehow or other I forgot the vow 1 had made some months previous, and the first Sunday night found me seeking admission to the Army hall, which was known then as the Jeffery Hale School. After a good deal of effort I gained admission and pushed my way up near the platform, where I took my stand. Presently a stone was hurled through the window, and then a nooting and yelling began both inside and out; but the brave officers went on with their meeting, seemingly unmoved, and doing all they could to gain a hearing in spite of the terrific row that was going on. The next night I was back again. The disturbance was a repetition of that of the night previous, and the crowd of disturbers seemed to get larger each night, until it became necessary to have a large squad of police to guard the hall. Often-times the police would charge on the crowd, scattering it in all directions, but not before many would be knocked down by the batons of the policemen, and in some cases the police was in turn knocked senseless on the sidewalk. It also became necessary for the officers have protection while going to their quarters after the meeting at night, so I, with a number of other young men and a detective, composed a body guard. I well remember one night the officers had to stay a little longer, to deal with some young men who were enquiring the way of salvation, and after the officers had got through with the enquiring ones, they opened fire on those who composed the bodyguard, got us on our knees, and, I assure you, we had a hot time of it for half-an-hour. The memories of that night lives with me vet.

Private McHarg, of the Volunteers, of the

I did not care to visit the hall again, and or some weeks I was conspicuous by my absence. I had no desire to get into another prayer meeting like the one I have referred to. When I did attend now and then I gave the officers a wide berth, and took good care they did not get too near me.

On January 1st, 1887, officers arrived and started the English work. The officers in charge were Capt. Lang (now Mrs. Ensign Elliott), Lieut. Staples, and Cadet (now Ensign) Lott. The first Sunday afternoon found my two chums and myself seated in the last seat of the old Congregational Church, where the meetings were being held. On this occasion I was not so anxious to get so near the platform as I was on my first visit to the Army hall. As the services proceeded I sat and took it all in, and I left the meeting that afteroon very favorably impressed with all I had heard and saw, and a longing desire in my heart to be like those Salvationists. I have not the slightest doubt I would have felt the same months before, while attending the sevices at the French hall, but as their services were all in French I was unable to understand. However, now that I had got started it was a case of "I couldn't and I wouldn't stay away from them." Every night I was there, and all day Sunday—knee-drill included. Numbers of souls were saved at every meeting, and on Sunday morning, Jan. 30th, '87, I sought the Lord with a penitent heart. God, for Christ's sake, forgave the black, guilty past and gave me the blessed assurance that I was His child.

Adjt. and Mrs. McHarg

A few weeks later came the struggle for soldiership, but this was of short duration. I made up my mind that at all costs I would follow the Lord in the Salvation Army, and with a number of others a few weeks later was enrolled by Commissioner Coombs, on his first visit to the city.

I well remember some of the first marches after I became a soldier. There would be possibly half-a-dozen of us marching up street single file, and the officer walking backwards, shaking a tambourine, and this on Sunday afternoon. On my first Sunday afternoon march I imagined that I met everyone that I knew, and everything my foot came in contact with that afternoon seemed to cause me to stumble. The devil told me I was making a nice fool of myself; but I kept on, and so gained a wonderful victory.

Then the persecution began; every time we went out we would have snow balls and ice thrown at us, and as the spring came on, when there was no snow and ice to be had, the mobs that gathered every time we marched out soon found they had a good substitute in stones and rocks, which were often of a very large size. On one occasion one was aimed at my head, but happily missed and broke the drum which I happened to be carrying that night. Thie stone weighed two pounds and a-quarter, and I kept this some years as a souvenir. Many of the soldiers and officers carried cuts and bruises for days.

Jim McHarg,

I well remember the Sunday afternoon when the officers of both corps decided that they would have a united march down through the French portion of the city, known as St. Roches. This particular Sunday hap-pened to be Procession Sunday. On St. Joseph Street there was a large arch erected. under which we marched. After we got through, and were just turning onto Crown Street a mob, which had been growing in numbers till there were possibly five hundred, started to chase us with stones and rocks. There was hardly a soldier or officer in that Sunday afternoon march that escaped without a cut or bruise of some sort. I saw one of the officers struck in the back of the head with a stone, and with her hands clasped be-hind her head I saw the biood trickling through her fingers; but no one ran, we marched quietly along till we reached the Upper Town again.

The next big row was what is so well

The Battle of the Basilica.

Commissioner Coombs, accompanied by a number of specials, also the Montreal Brass Band, were in the city conducting the anniversary meetings. The scenes of the night will never be erased from my memory. The ringleader of the mob that night was Frank W——, with whom I was well acquainted. He came into the barracks before the march started out and took a seat. As soon as the march left the barracks he rose up and went out, and let forward the mob which was the cause of so much bloodshed. Shall I ever forget the sight my eyes beheld that night? The basement of the hall was like a hospital. The doctor was going around sewing up cuts for one, putting sticking plaster on someone else who had received a cut from a stone, and on a seat somewhere clse one lay almost unconscious.

The climax was reached when the Chief of Police informed our officer in charge some weeks later that they had decided to with-draw police protection, and that if we marched we would do so at our own risk. This did not deter the officers and soldiers, it only seemed to make them more determined. The police seeing this, and fearing worse things might happen, decided on another course. One or two mornings after, while working at my bench, a message was sent that I was wanted, and when I presented myself I was placed under arrest and taken to the Court of Justice, where, with five others, we were charged with being a nuisance, frightening horses, and wakening babies. I was released on $200 bail, and as the case was never properly settled. At the time we were informed that we were not to march any more till the case was settled. But we thank God, while we received some rough treatment, no lives were lost.

"UP WITH THE SALVATION ARMY."

Down with the Salvation Army!" shouted one of the strikers at Helsingfors, as together they marched past one of our halls. His call received no response, but on the other hand the whole crowd shouted in chorus, "Up with the Salvation Army!"

How much more might we make of our family life, and of our friendships, if every secret thought of love blossomed into a decd.

The General, on his way to the Holy Land, heard a piece of news that gave him real comfort and encouragement know, is a tough battlefield for the Army. In the nature of things, it could not be otherwise. The news was conveyed to him by a bright, intelligent Cadet. One of the Paris corps, is seems, has had within the last few weeks one headed converts, ninety of whom are good, reliable cases. Asked to explain the cause, he said, "The sports of revival came upon the officer, and she is a great worker." The lad evidently at-tached as much importance to the last condition as the dest. gloritying God,

I shall meet with old comrades, some who are long known to me and personally beloved by me, and some who are known and beloved by you. Amongst others, I shall see Commissioner McKie. (Loud applause.) And I suppose you would like me to take your love to him, and say, 'Your conrades in the city of London and round about send you an assurance of continued affection, and urge you to persistent and faithful adherence to the principles of the Salvation Army and the great work—your first work, it might be termed—of saving souls and building up the people of God in holiness, rightcoursness, and devotion.' May I say that to the Commissioner? (Great answering shouts of "Amen" from the whole congregation.)

"And may I add that his comrades on this side the world will promise to persevere in the same path?" (Again the echoing answer.)
The General's next passages were filled with paternal solicitude for those he was !aa. ing:

Left in Good Care.

"I suppose you say, 'Well, General, we're all right; we are able to take care of ourselves.' I am not quite sure about that; not quite sure whether you can dispense with my oversight and service so readily! But I have the assurance in my soul that I am leaving the assurance in my soul that I am reaving you in good keeping—in the care of God Himself. (Amens.)

"And I am leaving you also under the oversight, humanly speaking, of a good earthly leader—the Chief of the Staff. (Enthusiastic applause.) How great is my satisfaction at having so good a representative, so capable an officer, to leave behind, no words can tell an officer, to leave behind, no words can tell I believe, so far as human gifts are concerned, he is equal to the duties that will devolve upon him. It seems to me sometimes, when I look at him and think of it, as though howas born for it; as though God had intended was born for it; as though God had intended him for that position. (Applause.) I am quite sure he was dedicated to it. I shall never forget the day of his dedication; it was born, as it were, in the very fire—the Holy Ghost was descending and the people were crying for mercy when he came into the world, and he was nursed amidst those holy dedicated in the came into the world, and he was nursed amidst those holy dedicated in the came into the world, and he was nursed amidst those holy dedicated and in influences which are still remembered, and in influences which are still remembered, and in which hundreds, you may say thousands, directly and indirectly, were converted.

"And the Chief will be assisted by a body of men and women of whom any General might be proud." (Loud applause.)

To-night, said the General, in offering "his own precious people" a word of cheer and counsel, we had come to a certain point in our career. Thank God, the road was open before us. What must we do? Stand still; court stagnation? In the name of God, No! "Go forward!", "Someon might retort, "General, you are

Someone might retort, "General, you are always echoing that sound." "What eise can I say?" replied the General; and he proceeded to prove, with irrefutable arguments, the reasonableness and necessity of his contention.

Look at public opinion; how marvelously it had veered round from antagon sm to respect and admiration. Look at the press-and he would like to acknowledge the generous manner in which the daily papers of this country, and especially of London, had treated the General and the Salvation Army. (Ringing cheers.)

Look at the Army's influence on the rel'gious organizations round about us.

Look how the Salvation Army had been

Look how the Salvation Army had been able to take hold of and successfully deal with the great problem of helping the poor.

And look how it had cultivated the art of giving, making, largely from the dregs and giving, making, largely from the dregs and outcasts of society, a people who, for one week every year, positively revelled in starvation and made everybody miserable about them until they helped the Self-Denial!

Go forward? "Yes," exclaimed the noble old warrior, "we're going forward!"

Finally, our leader uttered a stirring call to a fresh, new salvation erusade:

"Hundreds of years ago there was a great movement throughout Europe for the delivery ance of those holy places—which, if sparcd, I am going to look at during the next week -from the polluting tread of the Saracens. And a man named Peter the Hermit, went through Europe with a ringing cry for a crusade; hundreds of thousands of men, and even children, listened to the cry, and, b'dding farewell to fathers, mothers, husbands, wives, a characteristic and fiery testimony. And then the Chief—God bless him! Patting him affectionately on the shoulder, the General leaned forward and remarked, "A chip of the old block "—a sentiment which the assembled Salvationists cheered to the echo.

"I think," said the Chief, "I can best serve the meeting to-night by saying how conscious If feel that there are multitudes of Salvation-ists whom you are leaving behind you, Gen-eral, in the Old Country, who are resolved, while you are away, upon carrying out to the very fullest extent possible the counsel you have been giving us to-night and during the last few weeks in the War Cry. (Amens.)

"There is one thing more than another which has worked out the wisdom of the General's leadership, it has been that while he has ever set before us that which has been of the highest and most noble character, yet it has always been practical and possible; and I can recall nothing which has been said to-night which has not had in it the possibility of immediate realization by the weakest Salvationist present here. (A volley.)

"Sometimes you hear old Salvationists say that they wish the old days would come back again; and when you come down, as I some-times do, to examine closely what they mean times do, to examine closely what they mean by 'the old days,' they generally refer to the days of the Army's greatest weakness, diffi-culties, and trial. There is no reason, there-fore, because your numbers are small in the corps, or because you are personally in the throes of some great temptation or affliction, or because you are struggling with the devil in your home circumstances, why, in spite of all that, you should not rise up, claim the and friends, pawned their plate and mort-gaged their lands and took their cash, and away they went and fought, and struggled, and died—alas! in vain. You will also remember how Richard the Lion-Hearted, one of the bravest kings who ever sat on the British throne, went as a leader and was very nearly lost himself.

"Oh, that I could be a Peter the Hermit and Richard the Lion-Hearted combined ! Oh, that I could rouse you up to fight not for these secular, material places, but for the bodies and souls of men and women for whom Jesus Christ died, and that have been taken possession of not by the Saracen, but by the fiends of hell.

"Can't I rouse you? Can't I rouse the Salvation Army? Can't I wake them up in halfdozens, or in ones and twos, and make them resolve, in the strength of God and the power of the Holy Fire sent down from heaven, that they will go to the holy war whether they live or not through the business, to fight until deliverance comes, God is honored, and the world is saved!"

Commissioner Nicol, who accompanies the General on his travels, and who was humor-onsly described by him as "my keeper," gave strength of God, and set to work this very night to do just the very thing the General has been talking about—Go forward!

"So I promise the General, on your behalf, that we will do what we can while he is a way to carry on the work. For one thing, we will have a good Self-Denial—(applause)—i think London ought to take the lead in the I say also, on your behalf, that our pravers shall follow the General every hour of his journey while he is away; and we will pray that God will give him the unutterable joy of sceing multirudes of souls brought to the feet of Jesus Christ, and bring him safely back to us once more." (Amen.)

The General's last words commended his comrades to God, and urged them to seek the continuance and spread of the revival. "Pray," he added, "that we shall have a revival out there!"-the instant response to which was voiced in the effectual petition of Commissioner Booth-Tucker.

God has given the Army a signal open-air victory in Los Angeles, Cal., where several saloon-keepers tried to stop them conducting open-air meetings.

Two Samples of Faith.

By C. B. T.

Mark v. 21-34.

One was a rich man, a ruler-exalted in position, with power, influence, and money at his command.

The second was "a certain woman"lonely, suffering, reduced. Health gone, money gone, hope well-nigh gone also.

One came for his child. Came as a lather. Fell upon his knees at the young Propher's feet, "besought Him greatly." "I pray Thee,

Poor father! He is agonized. His very soul is stirred for the life of his darling child, which is ebbing away.

If only the Healer could come at once, would enter his home, lay His gentle hand upon the fevered brow, then she might live.

But time is short-even now she is at the But time is snort—even now size is at the point of death. And yet the thronging crowds make progress slow.

Why does the Master tarry? Why does He turn Himself to seek the new suppliant?

One in that crowd had faith of even a bolder order than Jairus.

He could not rest assured the work would e done until he saw the Christ stretch forth

His hand towards the sick child. But this woman's faith rose higher. Not came, nor that He should know for what she came, nor that He should touch her.

"If I may touch but His clothes, I shall be whole

So behind Him she edged her way, the weak amidst the strong.

Will she be daunted? What chance has she amongst those big, strong men? Crowds of this size and kind rarely appear disposed to make way for a woman. But in spite of every and all obstacles she was determined.

Health, and even life, were held out to her by faith's keen-sighted vision in that opportunity.

When a soul would come to Christ hind-rances are never wanting. There they are, big and small. From quarters expected and unexpected. Parents hinder children, wives hinder husbands, irothers hold back their centers come a brothers' friends comsisters, sisters oppose brothers; friends, com-panions, work-mate, lovers, ofttimes stand in the way of those v ho would come in touch with Him and become His followers.

Oh, for more of the spirit of determination, which dares to prin its way through the throng and, like his woman, stretch the cager arm of faith to its utmost length that may but touch the hem of His garment."

the may but fouch the neth of this games.

The disciples could not understand why
Jesus should ask, "Who touched Me?"

Throngs pressed on every side. He was surrounded. The centre of all that surging crowd.

But Jesus knew how to discern the touch of faith from every other.

Health had been dispensed, shackles broken, fetters snapned, liberty gained, and two people knew it—the Giver and the receiver. Here is a lesson that I should like to press

No matter where Jesus finds faith, whether on a throne or a dung-hill, a palace or a poorhouse, He honors it, and to the faithful He gives the blessing sought for believed for.

Who shall describe the thrill of that virtue which entered her being?

Straightway she knew she was healed, and now she thought herself able to steal away unnoticed to take her place in the battle of life again.

Oh, the sweet consciousness that enters the soul, and sends every pulse flying with a rapturous energy when faith has dared stretch out her hand, and receive the blessing so long craved for.

Little use is it for sceptics and unbelievers to ply their doubts, or air their arguments as to the uncertainty of knowing when one is saved.

The woman knew that the deed was done; knew she possessed already the cure, in vain hope of which she had spent all her money among physicians. And although she had intended to keep it a secret, finding the Lord also knew that healing virtue had gone out of Him, she came before Him trembling and told Him all the truth.

True. He knew it all, but a further and larger blessing awaited her avowal and con-

He fain would add a blessing. He wants to give thee the sign of His adoption, and to the healing multiply peace. Listen—"Daughter, the faith hath made thee whole; go in peace."

The Power of Testimonv.

By Staff-Capt, Simco.

"They overcame him (the devil) by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony."

HERE it a great deal said in the Word of God about testimony. Some think that it is purely optional, whether they choose to testify openly of what God has done for them as individuals or not, but such persons have surely not read aright.

"If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart thou shalt be saved."

That was the verse which nettied the French-Cauadian, who would fain have found a less public way. He wanted to be saved. He knew his great need. He felt deeply the guilt of his sins. He saw plainly the provision God had made for his present salvation in Jesus Christ. But for two years he stuck there. Willing to be-lieve in his heart; in fact, believing actually, but unwilling to confess with his mouth.

So the assurance of salvation was withheld. Open avowal meant very much to him. The apathemas of many with whom he was closely tied. Persecution in daily life and husiness. Perhaps even being boycotted beyoud the possibility of a livelihood in that city.

His dearest and nearest would turn into cruel enemies. In fact it might cost him home, family, business and native land.

He weighed it all up over and over again. But there was the direct condition God had laid down in His Word.

"If thon shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus . . . thou shalt be saved."

What could be more plain?

When he obeyed the light broke in, and God took care of him.

No man ever trusted God in vain. . . .

What is the ontstanding characteristic of what is the onistanding characteristic of the blessed revival breathing the breath of God throughout the Welsh valleys?

Just this: The power of testimony.

They are overcoming by the blood of the Lamb, and by the power of their testimony.

Not preaching, nor reading, nor singing, nor even praying alone, is producing such a sweeping torrent of victorious power, but the ord of their testimony.

It is Jesus these converts extoll. The blessed risen Saviour whose love meits their hearts, and whose precious blood has washed them from every stain,

No wonder they oftlimes burst into tears as IIis all-conquering love penetrates their entire nature. They are melted to tenderness, to gratitude, to self-forgetfulness.

The very testimony they render to Him ensures victory. The devil cannot withstand it. He doesn't mind long sermons much. He can put un with many very eloquent dis-courses; but when a sinner washed in the blood get up, and in simple, unpretentious language, with streaming eyes, tells from his heart what Jesus has done for him, and in him, there is no gainsaying the fact—the devil is overcome,

It is a grand thing to be saved high enough to be willing even to break down.

Fear keeps many a Christian from testiтопу. False shame also enslaves many others.

A Reminiscence.

In the very early days of the Salvation Army warfare in France, we were compelled to desist from public meetings in the city for a time, and endeavor to find people we could bless in the outlying country.

'Twas an old Huguenot region. Many a taithful Christian had suffered the loss of all things there in the times of the great persecution, when thousands of martyrs sealed their testimony by their blood.

An old church, away up on the hill, was vacant. No regular pastor ministered to the spiritual needs of the scattered families, and the fires of true religion were indeed very low. To this place, then, we repaired.

I remember it well.

My Lieutenant was a new convert of scarce six months' experience, fresh from the Swiss revival, where souls were saved by the score.

Early on Sunday morning, we sallied forth alone to seek power and inspiration from our God.

Down on our faces on the hill-side we cried unto Him, and trusted for the needed wisdom to conduct the day's meetings.

As we rose, from all directions of that countryside we could discern our congregation trooping along the dusty roads.

Those from afar were driving, all were wending their way to the church on the hill, from whose bell-tower was already pealing a welcome call.

The old bell possessed a romantic story, having been preserved by burial from the ruthless hand which devastated any and every religious treasure from the hunted Hugue-

The fact of our youth (for we were but girls in our teens) shamed many of those elder people, although we were entirely oblivious to that

INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT DIVERS.

Equipment and Methods of Divers,

Equipment and flethods of Divers.

A glance at the equipment and methods that make submarine diving safe may be of interest. There have been devised from time to time all sorts of diving bells and pumps. But the Augustus Sube apparatus is the foundation of the present diving suit. This equipment is in two parts. There is, first, the metal helimet. The rest of the body is covered by a dress in one piece. The helimet is made of thaned copper. It is firmly attached to the breastplate, which, in turn, is secured by twelve strews to the collar of the waterproof covering of the whole body. In the helmet are two little oval side winaws. They are fitted with brass frames with guards. There is another little window in front. Windows cannot become dimmed by the divers breath, because they are in a current of air from the "last valve," from which the fresh air is admitted at the back of the helmet, the divers dress weights about 170 pounds. In detail, it includes the heavy weight of the helmet, thirty-five pounds; at the breastplate and back are weights amounting to eight pounds; the weterproof all-none-piec dress weighs fourteen pounds. The stockings, guernsey and other underelothing make up an additional weight of eight-and-a-half pounds. All this is rather expensive, costing about $500. An electric lamp and telephone have been added to complete the body, and made of copper. This construction is needed for the resistance of the great pressure of water at sattrems depins. The maximum depth for safe working is 156 feet, although work has been done at the depth of 204 feet. The pressure at that depth it about $84$ pounds to the square inch.

Among the waterd duties of the diver may be menioned scraping of ship bottoms of incrustations, to increase the speed of the vessel, or "salving" a week.

tioned scraping of ship bottoms of incrustations, to increase the speed of the vessel, or "salving" a wreck, or working in land tunnels, or delving in & flooded mine.

wreck, or working in land tunnels, or delving in a flooded mine. The various navies of the world are considered incomplete in equipment if their warships are not provided with divers.

One method of raising a sunken ship is as follows: Two old wooden ships with a superior percentage of buoyancy, when combined, are moored over the wreck. A tackle of steel hausers is arranged, with powerful winches. The vessel is lifted off the bottom as the tide rises, and hulks, submerged burden and all, are towed toward tho shore. At every high did this is ropeated, and the wreck is final beached. Another way of salvar, is to make sir-tight the sunken raft, and pump her out. Cargoes are often "salved" when the sunken ships are abandon d. Treasure is frequently rescued, a diver receiving as his commission for such work a sum of $22,000 not many 'years ago, in many cases specie has been thus recovered by the efforts of divers. Cargoes also have been saved. Invoices of wool, sifk, indigo, quicksilver, wine, silver, lead, and other preclous stuff, have been rescued in good condition.

There is much sunken treasure that cannot be received because it lies at too great a depth. Much work is done by divers in making harbors and plers. The diving bell is nometimes used for this purpose. A very large diving bell in present use measures 13 feet by 11 feet by 11½ feet in size. It weighs twenty-six tons. A huge wire rone is attached to it. The bell's equipment includes a telephone and electric lighting. But the diving apparatus is generally preferred.

poone and electric lighting. But the diving appar-atus is generally preferred.

In submarine blasting there is an immense amount of work done by divers. One rock recently blown up had been pleread by the horing of 16,000 holes. The amount of dynamite used amounted to 75,000 pounds, the cost of the operation being about $350,-000.

PEOPLE WHO DID NOT LIKE MUSIC.

The London Globe tells of some great men who were not fond of music. In the list we find the name of Southey, Soott, Tennyson, Theophile Gutter, Hugo, Dr. Johnson, Lamb, and Pope. Poor great men! Hugo said music spoiled his verses, Everybody knows Gautter's dictum that "music is the most expensive noise on earth." Soott wrote to his friend Morritt: "Sonatus and solos give me the spiens." Dr. Johnson's roply, too, is familiar, when at a violin performance a triend, noticing the great man's inattention to the technique displayed man's inattention to the technique displayed commarked upon the difficulty of the performance. Suit!" replied the doctor: "I wish Empossible." And when Boswell, in a gush.n. it, described how music affocted him so strongly and painfully, producing in his mind alternate sensations of pathetic dejection, so that he was ready to shed tears, and of daring resolution so that he was inclined to rush into the thickest part of the battle, the doctor simply and effectively gave him a cold douche—"Sir, I should never hear if if it made me such a fool!" Tennyson is reported to have said to Sir Hubert Parry: "Browning is degreed to have said to Sir Hubert Parry: "Browning is to have said to Sir Hubert Parry: "Browning is devoted to nuisic and knows a great deal plout it; but there is no music in his verse. I know nothing about music and don't care for it in the least, but my verse is full of music." Lamb confessed to having practiced "God save the King" all his life, "whistling and humming it to myself in solitary corners, and am not yet arrived, they tell me, within many quavers of it." And who does not remember the jingle attributed to Lamb, in which occurs the Immerishable starge. imperishable stanza:

"Some cry for Haydn, some Mozart, Just as the whim bites; for my part I do not care a farthing candle For either of them, or for Handel."

A GOOSE BURIED IN THE SNOW.

After having been imprisoned under snow for a month, a goose belonging to John Zellers, of Schooley's Mountain, was found to be alive a short time ago. The bird was one of a flock of twelve which Mr. Zellers owned, and was lost on Feb. Ist in a blizzard. The owner thought nothing further of it until recently, when he again went down to the brook to drive in his geese. One gander did not want to go to the poultry yard, and made a loud protest. The gander kept its gaze fixed on che spot across the brook, and Mr. Zellers thought it was hypnotized. Later in the arternoon he found the gander again in the same place. He peered across the stream and was surprised to see something white moving under the anow and ice. He kicked the snow, bringing to view the lost goose, alive and apparently happy, although somewhat bedragsied from its enforced fast.

BARE ALOE WOOD TREE,

The Bombay Gazette says: The aloe tree is a native of the mountains east and southeast of Sylhet, in Burmah, and in Bengal. It is variable on account of a dark, resinous, aromatic juice with which the wood in sometimes gerged. This rasin, or sugar, as it is coiloquially termed, is used for its perfume and supposed medicinal purposes. It is very costly and is used both for incense in religious and other coremonials, and siso in the preparation of a newfume called agar attor, which is practically as costly as attar of roses.

USES FOR HOT WATER.

To drink a bowl of hot water every night is splendid for digestion, and warranis a good sleep and clear complexion. A bag of hot water at one's feet when one has a cold; to the back, when it acies, and to the maps of the neck when one han a che, or feels sleepless, is one of the best remedies. When the even become inflamed a douche of bot water gives them strength and restfuliars, and when the feet are thred a good soaking in hot water of the best of remedies. Cold sows, fever blisters, and pimples bathed in very hot water dries them up in short order, and last, but not least, the hot water bag is indespensable to the household proper. There are innumerable palms and, aches which visit every human being, and the hot water bag is a cure for all.

GREAT SIMPLON TUNNEL.

The convention was signed in November, 1898; the contract was taken up by Brandt, Brandau & Co. of Hamburg, who offered to complete one single-track tunnel in five and a haif years for $14,000,000, and work began on August 15th, 1898, from hoth the Swiss and Italian sides. THE HAY FEVER GERM.

Professor William Dunbar, director of the Ham-burg Hygienical Institute, delivered a lecture before one of the Berlin scientific societies recently on hay one or the Berin scientific societies recently on hay fever. He has for many years made the affliction the subject of special investigations, Prof. Dunbar succeeded in finding the germ of the disease in the pollen of rye, malze, and certain grasses, and treated horses with those germs, and secured a serum called Pollatin, which has been used with good effect, entirely average and recently as the property of the tirely curing many cases.

DINING IN JAPAN.

If it's your first Japanese dinner you're having a dreadfully hard time, says a writer in Scribner's. In the first place, you must sit on the floor, for they don't have any chairs in Japan. You kneel down, and then you turn your toes in till one laps over the other, and then you sit back between your beels. At first you are quite proud to find how well you out, and you don't think it's so very uncomfortable. But pretty soon you get cramped and your legs ache se it you had toothache in them. You don't say anything, because you think that if the Japanese can sit this way all day long you ought to be able to stand it for a few minutes. Finally both feet go to sleep, and then you can't bear it a moment longer, and you have to get up and stamp round the room to stand it for a few minutes. Finally both feet go to sleep, and you have to get up and stamp round the room to drive the prickles out of your feet, and all the little dancing girls giggle at you. This isn't your only trouble, either. All you have to eat with is a pair of chop-sticks, and you're in terror lest you spill something on the deinty white matting floor. The floor of a Japanese house isn't just a neor; it's the chairs, and tables, and sofas, and beds, as well. At home it would be mortifying enough to go out to dinner and spell something on the floor: but in Japan, where people sit and sleep on the floor, it seems even worse. So you are unhappy uctil your little neam (who is the waitress, and almost as prettily dressed as the dancing girls, but not quite comes laughing to your ald, and shows you how to hold your chop-sticks. After that you manage n'eely the rice and the omelet, but the fish and the chicken you can't contrive to shred apart without dropping your chop-stickes in the time. So, between dances, the unalko—little girls about twelve years old—kneel from health and want to health one of the comes handle out and all the time. THE MISSION OF RIDER HAGGARD.

The special commissioner which the British Government has appointed to investigate the Salvation Army's colonies in the United States, Mr. Rider Haggard, the distinguished writer, has reported very favorably upon the colonies. He found the three S. A. settlements in Colorado, California, and Ohio, flourishing beyond the most hopeful expectations. The thousand colonists settled upon 2,783 acres of land are making thrice the price of the land in agricultural products. As a result of Mr. Haggard's first report, the British Government has requested the author of the S. A. settlement scheme in the U. S. A., Commander Booth-Tucker, to meet Mr. H ggard and the Governor-General of Canada. This is done with a view to aiding the Army's projected scheme of colonizing South Africa on a similar plan, and if the Home Government gives the expected assistance, the General will put into operation the S. A. plan at one... This again illustrates the fact that the m n'fold operations of the Army to better the lat of the poor man has compelled recognition as very practical, economical, and touly phil no The Australian Government de thropic. serves the cred t of having been the firs which gave extended Government support to the Salvation Army; other colonies and countries followed it example. The British Government has be n very slow to give official recognition, but once it is thoroughly convinced it will likely be also thorough in its aid. For the sal e of that great throng of the submerged of England, let us hope and pray it may be so.

A great and enthusiastic workers' demonstration was given the Commissioner in the York Theatre Monday night. Dr. Alward in the chair, supported by a strong platform of influential citizens. Ald. Bullock culogized the Army's work. Rev. Hamilton, in the name of the pastorate of the city, gave utterance to warm words of welcome. Commissioner swayed at will the large audience, who drank in every word and applauded constantly. The prayer meeting was glorious; thirty-three souls surrendered. Three hundred and eighty souls is the splendid total for the campaign. Officers' council and farewell zend-off to-morrow. Commissioner and party are well.—Lieut.-Colonel Pugmire.

MR. RIDER HAGGARD AND THE SALVATION ARMY.

Mr. Rider Haggard, who is on a visit of inspection to the Salvation Army Land Colonies in America on behalf of the British Government, is not only a popular author, but an agriculturd expert. In 1901 and 1502 he traveled throughout England investigating the conditions of agriculture and of the 1914 population. The results of these investigations are contained in the highly instructive volumes entitled "Rural England." We understand that Mr. Rider Haggard was greatly pleased with the management and good order that prevailed, and the excellent agricultural results that flave been attained at Hadleigh, which he visited in company with the Chief of the Staff and Commissioner Booth-Tucker before leaving for America.

Mr. Haggard recently had an extended interview with Commander Eva Booth in New

WELSH REVIVAL IN LIVERPOOL.

In view of the Welsh Revival moven.en. which has already begun in Liverpool, Eng, it has been decided to at once open fire in a thoroughly Welsh district, in Cranbourne St., where services will be conducted entirely in Welsh. Mrs. Maggie Roberts—forme.ly known in Wales as Adjt. Williams—is conducting this movement. A number of Welsh soldiers live in this neighborhood, and there are said to be over 100,000 Welsh people in Liverpool, besides considerable communities in Birkenhead and St. Helens. "No English allowed," will be the motto of the new corps, so the existing salvation work in Liverpool will not be seriously interfered with.

Sixty-two for salvation and twenty-six for the blessing of a clean heart, is the record for one week in the Pacific Province. Two hundred and five sought salvation in that part of the battlefield in February.

Staff-Capt. G. Miller has been laid aside for a couple of weeks, suffering with blood-poisoning. He is now fast recovering his normal health and is back at his post of duty.

The Temple Band on Monday evening held their Annual Band Leaguer's Tea, when a sumptuous repast was placed before the assembly, and a most enjoyable and profitable time spent, the guests being entertained with music and song, while Major Morris, the Bandmaster ably officiated. Lieut. Colonel Gaskin lent zest to the occasion by some helpful remarks, and the corps and local officers of the band made neat speeches.

A generous use of varnish and paint is making the interior of T. H. O. look more sightly.

A most interesting piece of inform tion comes from New Westminster this week. This place has shared in the general revival, and several ministers of the town have united their efforts with the Salvation Army in the endeavor to reach those who seldom en er a place of worship. One minister donned a red guernsey as he assisted our comrades in the organizary.

Brigadier and Mrs. Taylor spent a very profitable day at the Temple last Sunday. There was a good harvest of souls, and the large auditorium, gallery included, was well filled on Sunday evening.

Some Oid Country comrades landing in the city of Toronto recently had a desperate voyage to Canada. In mid-ocean the ship sprang a leak, and the pumps had to be worked incessantly. The ship was delayed several days, but aside from suffering from much seasickness and fright all the passengers were landed in safety.

Lieut.-Colonel Friedrich conducted special meetings at Bowmanville, which corps celebrated its 21st anniversary. Monday nght the Colonel gave his stereoption lecture, "The Red Man."

BRIGADIER HOWELL AT PETERBORO.

Brigadier and Mrs. Howell, assisted by Capt. DeBow, spent the week-end at Peterboro. Attendance splendid. Crowded house at night meeting. Twenty-one souls were at the mercy seat. Good raily of old triends, and a very cordial invitation to return.

Twenty-Three Souls for the Week.

The fire of God's love is still burning, and His arm is being made bare in the salvation of souls at the Temple. Last Wednesday night we had the joy of sceing one who has long held out against God fail on her kness and surrender. On Friday night eleven more souls came for salvation and cleansing.

On Sunday the meetings were conducted by Adjt. Wakefield, who, a few years ago, was stationed in charge of the work at the Temple. Everybody was glad to see the Adjutant once more, and the best of all God sat H's seal upon the work by giving us eleven precious souls, making twenty-three for the week.

Soldiers and converts stuck well to the fight, as did also the Cadets which have been attached to the Temple corps. The band and songsters rendered valuable assistance, cheering and blessing everyone with music and song.—Tom Coombs, Staff-Capt,

At 12 o'clock, midnight, we sailed from Louisburg for St. John's, Nfid., direct. We encountered a good deal of ice, some of it possibly four feet thick, but the Bruce cut her way bravely through it and we reached our destination after thirty-six hours' sail. We did not realize a great deal of discomfort on the trin. Once or twice, when there was a the trip. Once or twice, when there was a heavy swell on, Brigadier Smeeton preferred to lie down quietly than attempt any business. Still, upon the whole, the Bruce behaved very well, and so did we.

There was very little faith a broad in St. John's that we would get through on time, but the Commissioner is a man of faith, as well as of works, and he had faith we would. Up to the present we have been enabled to keep every appointment. We give God the

The afternoon was spent in busines. The Commissioner inspected every branch of our work in the city, besides having interviews with one or two of the public gentlemen. BAY ROBERTS.

Our dear Commissioner was due to conduct a great meeting in a special hall (kindly lent), and as their was no train, owing to a wreck, we traveled by sleigh to this very interesting place. It is supposed to be nine miles distant from Harbor Grace, but surely Newfoundland miles must be longer than Canadian. Over ice and drifts of snow we traveled, sometimes on the sleigh and at others almost under, as on the sleigh and at others almost under, as we had numerous upsets owing to the dreadful condition of the roads. The Commissioner has a happy way of looking on the bright side of everything. He desires to see the roughest side of his dear people's work, so that he may be fully conversant with their difficulties. It was a rush to get through in time, but we managed it. Brigadier Smeeton, who is so well known, on behalf of the P. O., officers, and corps, spoke words of appreciation of so early a visit. We had but little time for the prayer meeting, but it was not without fruit. for seven came forward and earnestly prayed for seven came forward and earn-stly prayed for a full salvation. A man who would not sneak to his mother for ten years was among the number. Our train pulled cut at midnight for the city, which is several hours' distant. Parker and Bandmastr Packham. We were very fortunate in having them for a week-end. The Saturday night meeting was a good starter. The Adjutant received a real warm welcome back to one of his old battle-fields, where he is loved by one and all. The Suna real warm welcome back to one of his old battle-fields, where he is loved by one and all. The Sun-lay meetings were times of much blessing. A good crowd assembled for the holiness meeting. The af-ternoon meeting was glorious. We laughed, cried and shouted, and some of the comrades danced for joy. We rejoiced over what God had done for us. Capt. Parker read from God's word, and at the close a precious soul knelt at the Saviour's feet. The largest march turned out at night that Gueiph has seen for some time, all the converts taking their stand. The night meeting was the record crowd; every seat was filled, many extra ones peint brought overy seat was filled, many extra ones being brought in. Six souls wopt at the cross—all young people. A large crowd gathered Monday night to see the moving pictures, and they were much enjoyed. The figure admired the most of all was the beloved General as be reviewed his troops, showing the re-sult of his consecration to God. It was such a treat that the Adjutant was requested to repeat the extime to see it. Guelph is on the up-grade. Souls are being saved and taking their stand for God,— A Comrade.

Tom Major Rawling on the 5th of March, which was very much appreciated. The Major was a blessing to us and to the meetings. We are looking for a mighty revival in Hespeler. We are determined by the help of God to be true and fatitful. We also had a good time on Saturday night and all day Sunday. Unsign Poola was with us and gave us a good lantern service, which proved very satisfactory. We and a good crowd or Saturday night, God was with us all day Sunday, from early morning knee-drill till night.

It is years since we have had such a break, as things have been very hard here for some time. PALMERSTON. Sunday's meetings all day were of a deep searching nature. Ensign Poole's talk set many thinking and longing for a sanctified life. Barracks pasked afternoon and night; finances more than double. After a well-fought prayer meeting, five young men lined the mercy-seat. Old soldiers and Christian friends aroused, not having seen such a sight for some years. Some were praying in the ables, others pleading with sinners. Sergt.-Major Jeffr y's singing and presence proved a help in every way. The Ensign remains three more days. We are going in to conquer and be blood and fire.—J. S. C.

Four souls came to God for pardon. Tuesday night (soldiers' meeting) Adji Stote read to us one bf our beloved General's letters on "How to help your Capptain." It proved a blessing to our souls. Thursday night we had a real good meeting. At the close of the service four precious souls (two of them backeilders) knel; at the mercy seat. Quite a number of people isave our barracks visibly affected on acco at of their con-viction of sin. The Spirit of God is at work in our midst, and by His help we intend doing, and bless mildst, and by His help we intend doing and bless God, are doing, all in our power to bring them to Jesus' feet. Our faith is high, and we are oraying and believing for a glorious week-end. Hallelujah! Monday night two backsidden brothers returned the fold. They each contessed their folly in turning their backs on their denrest and best Friend. Their experience will no doubt prove a profitable one in keeping them closer to their precious Redeemer. Hallelujah! Tuesday night (soldiers meeting; Adt). Slote read another of those cherished letters of our dear General, entitled, "How to hinder your Captain" (a very easy task to accomplish). Yet, praise God, we feel like helping ours all we can our barracks is far too small; people are being turned away. The crowds are wonderfully interested. and Newfoundland Tour.

Holy Spirit was on him and inspired every word. The prayer meeting baffled description. From every part of the building penitents came, until sixty-seven sought and found God. Ten thousand hallelujahs!

A north-westerly gale was blowing with a velocity of perhaps forty miles an nour on Sunday morning, but this did not hinder a large crowd of several hundred people from attending the holiness meeting. Again the commissioner was at his best, and the long row of penitents, both for pardon and purity, demonstrated that God was wonderfully present in saving and sanctifying power.

Previous to this meeting the Commissioner met the juniors and Sergeants of the No. I. corps, and gave them a most interesting and profitable talk.

In the afternoon, although the storm in-creased in fury, yet a large crowd pushed their way to the College Hall. Once more when the Commissioner stepped on to the platform he was greeted with an outburst of welcome. The College Hall is an excellent building, accommodating about 1,100 people. Its acoustic properties are good, and easy for speaking. It may be called the "Masser Hall" of Newfoundland. Here again was a row of earnest seekers for pardon and purity at the mercy seat.

The night meeting was the climax. Eleven hundred people were present. From the very commencement God's presence was wonderfully felt. After the opening song and prayer had been offered, we sang on our knees with werful effect-

"Art thou weary, art thou languid, Art thou sore distressed? 'Come to Me,' says One, 'and coming, Be at rest.'"

The Commissioner again expressed to the people his pleasure at being in their midst once more, after an absence of sixteen long years, after which the writer sang, "He's able and willing to save." Then we listened to one of the most powerful addresses. The Commissioner had the eyes and ears of the congregation. Broken-hearted pentients made their way to the mercy seat until 11.30. Hal-lelujah! Jesus had conquered and hell had been defeated. One hundred and twenty-five souls in St. John's have been registered, and 263 for the tour thus far.

An officers' council was conducted by the Commissioner, which will be long remembered by the dear officers present. Certainly they struck a "patch of clover." They laughed and cried by turns.

Opening of the New Rescue Home.

On Monday afternoon the Home, which has been very much enlarged recently, so that the work of rescue may be further extended, was opened by the Commissioner, a number of ladies and gentlemen being present for the Rev. Mr. Thackeray (Congregationalist) spoke very highly of this branch of the Army's work. He and the church he represented, would be glad to assist in every possible way.

Brigadier Smeeton introduced the Commissioner, who spoke at length, and declared the Home, with its enlarged scheme of operations, opened.

The united city forces met at the No. I. The united city forces met at the No. I. barraoks at II p.m., and escorted the Commissioner and his Staff down to the wharf, from which place the S.S. Bruce was to sail at midnight. The Commissioner gave his final charge to his dear officers and soldiers. Major Creighton led in singing "God be with you till we meet again," and the Newfoundland campaign is a thing of the past, but its memory will live forever.

The Commissioner's Eastern Monday Night's Great Social Meeting in the College Hall.

(Daily News.)

The "social meeting," under Salvation Army auspices, in connection with Commissioner Coombs' visit, last night, was a distinct success, and marked an important epoch in Army work in the colony. The spacious hall was filled to overflowing with an attentive and sympathetic audience. Promptly at 8 o'clock His excellency, the Governor, aecompanied by Lady MacGregor, Miss MacGregor, Mr. E. A. Elgee, Private Secretary, and Mr. J. R. McCowen, A.D.C., entered the hall, and afterwards occupied seats on the platform. J. R. McCowen, A.D.C., entered the hall, and afterwards occupied seats on the platform. Amongst others also on the platform were Hons. J. J. Rogerson, Eli Dawe, H. J. B. Woods; Messrs. Morine, K. C., Morison, K. C., G. W. Gushue, T. Sinipson; Revs. Dr. Cowperthwaite, J. L. Dawson, A. Robertson, J. Thackeray, M. Fenwick, C. Lench, besides a strong force of Army officiais, male and female female.

His Excellency received an ovation as he rose to speak, and at frequent intervals his address was marked by very hearty applause. Sir William, who is a pleasing speaker, won the plaudits of those present for the earnest-ness and naturalness of his remarks. He said he felt some doubt at first as to whether he should preside at such a meeting, for although he had been a Governor for nearly twenty years, he had never been brought into con-tact with the Army's work. He, therefore, set for himself the task of enquiring into the tor himself the task of enquiring into the character of the Rescue work, and to this end visited the Home on Cook Street, as also the Men's Shelter. Having enquired and examined minutely into the system in vogue, and satisfied himself as to its efficiency and practicability, he felt that it was his duty to attend, and he had pleasure in commending the Rescue Work to the people of St. John's, whose shearty and liberality were propreptial. whose charity and liberality were proverbial. Sir William had discovered during his investigations that while the Army applied the prin-ciple that some payment should be made, no needy man or woman was ever turned away hungry if they could not pay, nor was the door ever shut against any applicant, no mat-ter what his or her creed, class, or denomina-tion. He had satisfied himself that the Salvation Army does not war against sects, but that its fight was against misery, and sin, and want. Such an organization was worthy the practical support of every right-minded man, and such support he trusted would be given. Unfortunately we are unable to give a full account of the Governor's masterful speech, but the great applause with which it was received testified to the fact that it was much appreciated.

Rev. Dr. Cowperthwaite was next speaker.

He expressed his pleasure at being present, and his sincere sympathy with the Army work. He referred pleasantly to Commissioner Coombs in New Brunswick eighten years ago, and after relating some incidents of that meeting, turned round and amidst an outburst of applause, said, "And now, Commissioner, I think we should shake hands." He continued in complimentary terms to express his approval of Army operations, notably the Cook Street Rescue Home. His opportunities of knowing of this work enabled him to give it praise and and company the him to give it praise and endorsement unstinted. He regarded such effort as the noblest which God expects men and women to engage in. The Army and the church work differed, obviously, but be-tween the two great forces in the world's evangelizing there was opportunity for manifesting unity of spirit in the bonds of peace. Rev. A. Robertson followed with a bright, brief address tinctured deftly with an element of mirth that was pleasing.

He outlined most interestingly the ramifications of the Army, from the period when all the officers could get under the hat worn by the General, up to the present time. The doctrine preached by the Army was the grand old one of the gift of God's love to fallen men. The great Dr. Livingstone had prayed that heaven's richest blessing might descend upon all, whether Turk, Infidel, or Christian, whose efforts were directed towards healing the open sore of Africa; and he praved that such blessing might attend the Salvation Army, or any other organization whose aim was to heal the sin sore of the world.

LINDSAY. Some great excitement A Hallelujah Wedding, has prevailed here, the reason being that a wed-reason being that a wedding had been announced for March 9th. The hall was filled with an interested audience. The building had previously been tastily decorated with bun,ing and flags, and did great credit to the Ensign and his staff of workers, who worked hard to make it look beautiful. Just as the meeting was about to start, the bridai party, headed by Brigadier and Mrs. Horn, made their way to the platform. The contracting parties were Sister Rachel Anderson and Brother Horace Austin. Sister Hattle Antis assisted the bride, and Brother Maytee the groom. After the opening preliminaries were over, the Brigadier read a portion from God's word, and after 1 fow renarks, proceeded to read the marriage articles, calling the contracting parties to stand forward if willing to be united. This they did readily, and the 'I will's' were distinctly and clearly said. After the knot was tied, Brother Blackwell was called on to say a few words on behalf of the marriad people. He gave some good advice to the newly-married pair. Ensign White spoke a few words for the single people, but was so happy at having sacured a good wife, he would not say anything in their behalf. Mirs. Ensign White and Mrs. Brigadier Horn sang a duet, 'Come Oh, Come With Me.' The bride and groom were then called on to say a word. The groom could not recommend single blesselness, and could not any much for married life as yet, but he could not any much for married life as yet, but he could recommend the Saviour to all, and the Christian life ding had been announced for March 9th. The hall not any much for married life as yet, but he could recommend the Saviour to all, and the Christian life as a happy one. Both urged on all prosent to seek the Saviour, and live a good life. The meeting was closed by singing the doxology. The corps join in wishing the happy couple a pleasant voyage through life.—One who was there.

PETERBORO. Since last report we can shout 4 Souls. victory again. Brigad.er Southall gave us a week-end, and his meetings were bleszed. Saturday night two preclous souls. Sunday's meetings were grand. The Poterboro barnacks, especially at night, was full, and the attention wonderful. Just as we were going to close the meeting two precious souls came and found nercy. The Brigadier is always welcome to Peterboro, having found a warm corner in many hearts. Come again, Brigadier, as soon as you can. We were very pleased to see the Adjutant about ag. in on Sunday, after being laid aside for a while through sickness. He is feeling much stronger again, praise God. One pleasing feature of the meetings here is the way in which the juniors testify and sing. They are among the first to get up and give glory to God. It does one good to see the smiling face of J. S.-M. Braund when they testify. On Thursday the band and juniors gave a musical festival, which proved to be very interesting, consisting of band selections, solos, duets, recitations, action alongs and club-drills. be very interesting, consisting of band selections, solos, ducts, reclations accions and club-drillis, and we closed with a Bible reading by the Adjutant. One desired an interest in our prayers. May God help him. God is helping us wonderfully in our Siege efforts, and we mean to smesh our target.

PARRY SOUND. On Saturday evening we looked forward to welcome our new Lieutenant, but she never came, so our little Capitain led us on in the strength of the Lord. We had a grand open-air meeting, there being a lot of the chanty boys in town, and they listened to a few of the soldiers giving their testimonies, and especially when he sang, "The Gospel train starts to-day," which his father composed. On Sunday morning, at our hollness meeting, we had a giorious time, in which Bro McLean took the lesson from the 12th chapter of Hebrews. In the afternoon we had another good meeting; good cheering testimonies, and a solo from little Eddie Howell. The Capitain took the lesson. In the evening we had a grand meeting. The hall was filled and the lesson was taken by Brother McLean. On Thereday we had a welcome meeting to Lieut Friedrich. We like her very much, she scems to be filled with the Hely Ghost.—One of them.

Tune.—A Charge to Keep (N.B.B. 66); No Sorrow There (N.B.B. 73).

Jesus, my Strength, my Hope, On Thee I cast my care; With humble confidence look up, And know Thou hearest prayer,

Give me on Thee to wait.
Till I can all things do;
On Thee, almighty to create,
Aimighty to renew.

I want a sober mind. A self-renouncing will.

That tramples down and ca.ts behind
The baits of pleasing ill.

A soul inured to pain,
To hardship, grief, and loss,
Bold to take up, firm to sustain
The consecrated cross.

A spirit still prepared And armed with jealous care, For ever standing on its guard, And watching unto prayer.

"GREATER THINGS."

By Lieut.-Colonel Addie.

Tune.-Where do You Journey, My Brother?

In the years that have passed God has led us Through Red Seas of danger untold; Through Red Seas of danger untous; With two He has conquered ten thousand, And raised up an Army so bold.
A people who were not a people,
From "nothing" God's power "something" brings;
God's elmiphty arm is not shortened,
He helps us to "still greater things."

He helps us to still "greater things," He helps us to still "greater things," God's almighty arm is not shortened, He helps us to still "greater things."

Our blood-and-fire flag is now flying
In forty-nine countries or more;
Our watchword, "Be all things to all men,"
Has given us a wide-open door.
Our Army shall win every nation,
As it all round the world itself sings;
God's almighty arm is not shortened,
He'll help us to "still greater things."

By Adjt, Phill ps, Jamaica.

Tune.-Tell it Again.

A Salvation Captain went hegging one day, Wanting the rent of ber barracks to pay; But she appealed to so many in vain— Some said they'd given, so would not again.

Chorus.

What did God say about it that day?
"Twas not the Captain that you drove away;
"And inasmuch as ye did it," sald He,
"Unto the least, then ye did it to Me."

She went to a man who had brains and had wealth, But found him concerned more about his own health; Just paying the doctors so that he might live, and paying so much he had none left to give.

She went to a Christian, and made up her mind That in aim a friend of the Army shed final; He wanted her time in discussing a creed; Then said he could give, but he saw not the need!

One smoked tobacco-cigars are so dear! Another had just bought a berrel of beer!
Another some pet dogs! Another had hid
His talents and money, and owned it, he did.

By Capt. E. Simms.

Tune.-Christ for Me.

Now I am saved, 1 am the way."

And now I am saved!

I trampled on the Saviour's blood,
But now I'm saved!

I heard the Saviour call to me,
He whispered low, "I am the way."

And now I get salvation pay.

Now I'm saved, I am saved.

I sim a soldier, and I'm free, I'll be true, I'll be true; I mean to let the whole world see I am true.

And how I love to sing and pray,
And light for God and souls cach day,
And point them to the narrow way;

All Til be true, I'll be true. Now, sinner, come; this is the way, Will you come? Will you come? will you come? Will you come? Give God your heart now while you may Will-you come? Oh, come, poor sinner, come to-day, -And step into the narrow way; Jeaus will wonh your sins away.

Won't you come? Won't you come?

THE SAVIOUR'S PLEADING,

Mrs. F. Ibbotson, Temple Corps. Tune.—Hiding in Thee.

5 The Saviour is calling, "Oh, come unto Me." Outstretched are Hie hands as a welcome to thee;

So freely your past life of guilt and of sin Will all be forgiven, and cleanse you within.

Chorus.

Hiding in Thee.

O sinner, although you have hardened your hear; Yet 'tis not too late ou this journey to start; Then seek now the face of the Saviour to-day, Plunge into the fountain, His strivings obey.

Consider how wayward in life thou hast been, And for you 'tis flowing, this wonderful stream; The Judgment is coming; oh, how will you stand? Step out of thy bondage and reach forth thy hand.

Tune,-Marching to Zion (N.B.B. 70).

To leave the world below, March upward with our band, And step by step we mean to go To Zion's happy land.

We're marching to Zion, Beautiful, beautiful Zion; Marching the Army to Zion, That beautiful city of God.

The city we shall see, The heavenly music hear; Marching to songs of victory, With all the Army there.

With "blood-and-fire" unfurled, Marching to victory grand, The Army means to lead the world To Zion's happy land.

Tunes.—Spanish Chant (N.B.B. 90); Wells (N.B.B. 51).

Weary souls that wander wide Weary souls that wander wide From the only source of bliss, Turn to Jesns crucified, Fly to those dear wounds of His! Sink into the purple flood; Rise into the life of God.

> Oh, believe the record true, On, believe the February true,
> God to you His Son hath given!
> Ye may now he happy, too,
> Find on earth the life of heaven!
> Live the life of heaven above,
> All the life of giorlous iove.

This the universal bliss This the universal bins,

Bliss for every soul designed;
God's original promise this,
God's great gift to all mankind:
Blest in Christ this moment be, Blest to all eternity.

SEEK THE LORD.

By Wm. Ritchie, Victoria, B.C. Tune.-Meet Me There.

Harden not your heart to-day, Soon this life will pass away, Head the call while yet you may, Seek the Lord! There's a call comes loud and clear From the Word of God so dear, And the Spirit whispers near, Seek the Lord!

Seek the Lord, seek the Lord, While in mercy He is waiting, Seek the Lord! While the door is open wide, And the fountain's crimson tide Flows an ever-cleansing tide, Seek the Lord!

While the day of grace remains, Throw off sin's enslaving chains, Wash away your guilty stains, Seek the Lordi

Ye who would that city gain, Where they know no tears or pair Hear in song the sweet refrain, Seek the Lord!

God alone thy soul can stay When this world shall melt away, And you need His grace to-day, Seek the Lord! Time is so uncertain here. At the bar you must appear, Would you so without a fear? Seek the Lord:

Tunes.~The Lion of Judah (N.B.B. 190); Stand Like the Brave (N.B.B. 187).

Ocean, sinners, to Josus, no longer delay, A free, full salvation is offered to-day; Arise, all ye bond-slaves, awake from your dream! Believe, and the light and the giory shall stream.

Chorus.

For the Lion of Judah has broke every chain, And give us the victory again and again.

The world will oppose you, and Satan will rage; To hinder your coming they both will engage; But Jesus, your Saviour, has conquered for you, And He will assist you to conquer thom, too.

When death's shady valley Christ calls you to tread. A halo of glory around you He'll shed; His presence shall cheer you, as faintly you pray, And angels to Glory shall bear you away.

IN FOR WINNING.

Tune - West for the Wagon

The Army's in for winning
The world unto our God,
And souls who are in darkness
Are coming to the blood.

Chorus

The Army's in for winning, The Army's in for winning, The Army's in for winning, The world unto our God.

Some people call us crazy.

And say we are all mad,
They say that our salvation
Is nothing but a fad.

If we would stop and listen
To all they have to say
The work would never prosper,
And we ne'er would wing the day.
Capt. Hartman, Detroit III., Mich.
